CYCLERS' SOCIAL.

Enjoyable Shirtwaist Party Given at the Lake.

The shirtwaist party given under the auspices of the Thread City Cyclers in the Casino at Lake Wungumung, South Coventry, Thursday evening, proved a very popular social event and was largely attended. Music was furnished by the Thread City Cyclers' orchestra. A high crowd attended from this city and the late cars from the lake were heavily loaded.

Decorating for Encampment.

Many of the principal business houses are elaborately decorated for the seventh department encampment that convenes in town hall today and tomorrow. The leading merchants and the proprietors of the various hotels are bedecking their places of business with the national colors and in many places the colors of the United States War Veterans, red and yellow, are conspicuously displayed. Practically every business man along Main street has signified his intention to assist the comrades of A. C. Tyler camp, No. 8, in making the encampment a success.

CRIMINAL CARELESSNESS.

Coroner's Finding in Case of Death of Charles Ladda.

Following is the text of the coroner's finding in the case of the death of Charles Ladda at Willimantic May 31st, 1910:

The undersigned, coroner within and for the county of Windham, having received notice from Capt. E. H. Richardson, chief of police of the city of Willimantic, that on Monday, May 30th, 1910, one Charles Ladda, a boy of about 12 years of age, had been run over by an automobile and received injuries causing his death, and that his body was then lying in St. Joseph's hospital in said city; I proceeded to view said body, and on the first and third days of June, 1910, held an inquest in regard to the death of said Charles Ladda at the police station in said city of Willimantic. From the testimony taken at said inquest it appears that about 40 hours before the death of said Charles Ladda, he was riding on a large crowd of people, men, women and children, and among whom was the said Charles Ladda and several other boys, on a trolley car of the Connecticut company, heavily loaded with passengers, several of whom were standing on the running boards on either side of the car, approached from the east, going west, and came to a stop a few feet west of the crosswalk which crosses Main street to High street. About the same time a 40-horse power automobile, driven by Roland B. Jordan of Willimantic, and in which four other young men were riding, approached from the west, going east, and as it was about to pass said trolley car several boys, among whom was the said Charles Ladda, attempted to run from the sidewalk on the southerly side of the street past the rear end of the trolley car to the southerly side of the street. As they reached the center of the traveled way on the southerly side of the trolley car three of the boys were struck by said automobile, and the said Charles Ladda was thrown in the air, after which he passed over him. His neck was broken, his left arm and hand fractured, and his left thigh fractured, from the effects of which injuries he soon died.

Broad, Straight Street.

The street where the accident occurred is a broad, straight street, about the driver of the automobile had a clear, unobstructed view of the same, and also of the large crowd of people upon the sidewalk, and the heavily loaded trolley car in the center of the street, for quite a distance before he saw the children. The statute of Connecticut provides that "no person shall operate a motor vehicle on the public highways of this state recklessly or at a rate of speed greater than is reasonable and proper, having regard to the width, traffic and use of the highway, or so as to endanger the property, life or limb of any person." It also provides that "if the rate of speed of a motor vehicle operated upon the public highways of this state is such as to be a danger to life or limb of any person, or exceeds three miles an hour, such rate of speed shall be prima facie evidence that the person operating such motor vehicle is operating the same at a rate of speed greater than is reasonable and proper, and in violation of section 11," above quoted.

Violating Speed Law.

As the evidence shows that the automobile in question was running from six to twelve miles an hour when the accident occurred, it was being operated at a greater rate of speed than the legislature of Connecticut says is reasonable and proper.

In view of the crowded condition of the street, and of the trolley car, which was stopped, or about to stop, to receive and discharge passengers, it seems to me that the reasonable and proper operation of the automobile required its speed to be reduced to a point that it would be under absolute control and could be instantly stopped.

In Accord With Supreme Court Decision.

It seems to me that this conclusion is in accord with the very recent decision of the supreme court of Connecticut in the case of the state vs. Campbell.

I therefore find that the said Charles Ladda died in Willimantic on the 30th day of May, 1910, from injuries received from being struck by an automobile while in control of and being operated on the public highway of the state by Roland B. Jordan, and that the death of said Charles Ladda was caused by the criminal carelessness of the said Roland B. Jordan.

In accordance with the statute I have communicated the import of this finding to E. Frank Hughes, prosecuting attorney of the city of Willimantic.

With this finding I file the evidence taken at said inquest.

Dated at Danielson, Conn., this 8th day of June, 1910.

ARTHUR G. HILL,

Coroner for Windham County.
